

American Heart Association extends certification guidelines for BLS, ACLS, PALS

April 16, 2020

In March, the American Heart Association published guidelines that AHA issued certifications (BLS, ACLS, PALS) were considered valid for a period of 60 days past their expiration date. The guidelines have been updated to state that extensions will be granted for 120 days past their expiration date, as social distancing and shelter in place orders remain in place for most of the country.
